About Us

Falmouth Flats Fly Fishers is a wonderfully diverse group of anglers with one thing in common: the fly rod. Located in the Chesapeake Bay Watershed, we are a nonprofit charter club of the Federation of Fly Fishers dedicated to conserving, restoring and educating through fly fishing.

Our club was spawned as a result of the seasonal Shad and Striped Bass on the easily-waded Rappahannock River flats below the Falmouth Bridge in Fredericksburg, Virginia. Over the course of several years, as an increasing number of fly fishers came into contact with one another at the flats, information was shared, friendships made. On January 19, 1999, FFFF was launched at an organizational meeting which drew 25 people by word-of-mouth advertising. Our current membership roster now exceeds 100.

Today, our club's activities, projects and monthly meeting programs are as varied as its many members' interests. As a premier fly fishing club, our meetings are well attended by both impassioned fly fishers and those with a mild curiosity about the sport. Our goal is to never lose sight of the fact that we are a fishing club dedicated to fun.

Let's go fishing!

All Fish - All Waters

Our club members like to fly fish warm water, cold water, and saltwater. Come to a meeting to see what we're up to and how the fishing is. And join us for one of our fishing outings!

Projects - what we do

As a charter club of the Federation of Fly Fishers, we support their mission of conserving, restoring and educating through fly fishing. We have worked on riparian projects with the US Army Corps of Engineers and Friends of the Rappahannock, and each year we help maintain our local rivers with volunteer work related to river/litter clean-ups. We also host fly tying and casting clinics for anglers of all ages, and we especially enjoy working with the youth who represent the future of fly fishing. Please browse the photos below for more about what we do.
